

Set the default country calling code

Last Modified on 12/09/2024 3:28 pm EST

Read on to learn how to set the default country calling code.

Overview

A country calling code, or country dial-in code, is a prefix dialed before the telephone number when placing an international call. For example +39 is the calling code for Italy. By default, the prefix will reflect the country code of your MultiLine number.

Set the default country code

1. Open the dialer.
2. Tap the current country code (example below: +39).

3. Tap from the list to select the desired country calling code.

